Note:

There are many more organisations & publications and people who support peace and justice for the Palestinians. in fact, i feel that the cause of the Palestinians has become a universal cause of conscience. Our problem is how to get these myriad groupings across the world to coalesce into one big front that can apply pressure for political change. every day something terrible happens to someone. And the accumulated weight of terrible things increases. every little thing that any one of us does helps to provide a counterbalance and to bring reconciliation closer.
